ABOUT ALOE

- Aloes are succulent (full of juice or sap; having thick, fleshy leaves or stems) plants.
- They belong to the Lily family.
- There are more than 150 species of aloe; most are native to South Africa.
- Species vary in height from several centimeters to more than 9 m (30 ft.).
- Aloes have perennial, strong and fibrous roots.
- Aloes have numerous, persistent, fleshy leaves, proceeding from the upper part of the root. The leaves are narrow, tapering, thick and fleshy, with spiny teeth at the edges.
- Leaves are designed to retain water and minimize evaporation.
- Many of the species of aloe are woody and branching.
- In the remote districts of S.W. Africa and in Natal, aloes have been discovered 30 to 60 feet in height, with stems as much as 10 feet in circumference.
- Several species are commercially important as the source of the aloes used in medicine and cosmetics.
- The sap of some aloe plants can be processed for medical use.
- Powdered aloe juice is a laxative, and aloe vera gel soothes burned and frozen skin.
- Aloe provides some 200 bio-active components, including 20 essential amino acids.

ALOE – USED THROUGHOUT HISTORY

- Aloe has a long and well-known history dating from biblical times.
- Used in many cultures – by ancient Egyptians, Greeks, Romans, as well as by Indian and Chinese people.
- Has been called
 - Burn Plant
 - Plant of Life
 - Wand of Heaven
 - Medicine Plant
 - First Aid Plant

ALOE ACE-MAX™ - QUALITY IN RAW MATERIALS, GROWING, HARVESTING, AND PROCESSING

- Grown in an old volcanic region, providing a very rich growing soil.
- Irrigated with natural water sources as needed.
- Plants grow 10-15 feet in height.

Harvesting

- Rotation is based on harvesting the leaves at the best time.
- Each leaf is harvested by hand, nicked and pulled carefully from the mother plant so as not to break the rind.
- The leaves will naturally seal themselves within a short period and the inside will not be exposed to oxidation or contamination.
- Processing facilities are in close proximity to the fields.
- The leaves remain fresher and suffer far less bruises and other damage that can occur in transporting.
- Leaves are processed within a day of harvesting.

ALOE ACE-MAX™ - PROCESSING

- World-wide Newly Patented (October 2000) Exclusive Extraction Process.
- Goal is to retain as much of the aloe plant's natural make-up as possible.
- New Technology extracts a broad spectrum of polysaccharides (including extra-long) from the aloe plant.
- The technology allows the nutrients and polysaccharide chains to be very concentrated - less is needed than in other ways of processing - it is cost-effective to produce the product at a lower price.
- Proprietary low-heat dehydration process is used.
- The product is never allowed to reach a temperature over 99 degrees F.
- No enzymes are used in the extraction process.
- The low heat process is successful in retaining a full spectrum of polysaccharide chains found in Aloe.
- The special low heat formula does not break down the immune modulating long chain mannan polysaccharides.
- Natural healing components are left whole and intact – the product is never filtered.
- World-renowned GR8CF-77™ formula enzyme delivery system with 77 ionic minerals (available exclusively from Ronald K. Schneider) is added to the freeze-dried aloe, ensuring proper digestion and assimilation by your body.

HEALING PROPERTIES ARE DETERMINED BY THE SIZE OF THE POLYSACCHARIDE CHAINS

Research has shown that the mucilaginous polysaccharide is the sole ingredient responsible for all the healing properties attributed to Aloe.

Polysaccharides are specific nutrients with specific chemical compositions. Their function is to fill receptor sites on cells and activate cellular function. As more receptor sites are filled, there will be optimized activation of cellular function.

Polysaccharide chains range from small through extra-long.

ALOE ACE-MAX™ RETAINS THE FULL-SPECTRUM OF POLYSACCHARIDE CHAINS FOUND IN THE ALOE PLANT.

VARYING SIZES of the mucilaginous polysaccharide molecule determine their healing properties:

- SMALL – 50-600 molecules
 - Reduces inflammation – involved in ulcerative colitis, arthritis, and gastric reflux.
 - Helps with the reduction of blood sugar with both Type I and Type II diabetes.
- MEDIUM – up to 1500 molecules
 - Effective intracellular antioxidants and free radical scavengers
 - Important in preventing and treating arteriosclerosis, heart disease, and Parkinson's disease
- LARGE – up to 5,000 molecules
 - Direct anti-bacterial and anti-viral effect
 - Important with new infectious diseases and older ones becoming resistant from long term use of antibiotics.

- VERY LARGE – up to 9,000 molecules
 - Immune modulating (regulating, return to normal)
 - Powerful healing effect on AIDS, cancer, and many different immune system disorders
 - Causes the body to produce a natural chemical (tumor necrosis factor) that functions to shut off the blood supply to tumors

ALOE ACE-MAX™ AND EXTRA-LONG CHAINS

Now, with this revolutionary breakthrough technology, for the first time it is possible to extract a longer, more concentrated, extra-long polysaccharide chain from the aloe plant.

Totally new - exceeds all previously known aloe products - with much higher concentrations of the the longest polysaccharide chains - 12,500 up to 2 million - from the aloe plant.

The length of the chain determines benefits to the cells. The chains interact with the cell and fill the receptor sites on the cells. It is now possible to activate most cells in the body to a much higher activity level with a single source nutrient.

Aloe Ace-Max™ is a blend of the highest properties of polysaccharide chains in a freeze-dried powder. It retains the FULL SPECTRUM OF POLYSACCHARIDE CHAINS (small through extra-long) found in the Aloe plant.

Regular use of Aloe Ace-Max™ will optimize the activation of the entire cellular structure of the whole body that relies on polysaccharides for cell activation.

There is no detoxification or healing crisis. Aloe Ace-Max™ facilitates intra-cellular activation – it works on cellular functioning, not on the outside environment of the cell.

ALOE CAN HELP YOU – RESULTS OF CLINICAL STUDIES

Scientific research proves that the mucilaginous polysaccharide is the sole ingredient responsible for all the healing properties attributed to Aloe.

Cancer Research

- Aloe mucilaginous polysaccharide is taken into the macrophage, and this cell is stimulated to release messenger molecules called cytokines (interferons, interleukines, prostaglandins, tumor necrosis factor, and stem-cell growth factors).
- All of the immune modulating effects from Aloe contribute greatly to the prevention and healing of malignant cells. (Ian Tizard, Ph.D. and Maurice Kemp, Ph.D., Texas A&M)

Benefits Lung Cancer

- Aloe was the only one of the plant foods that was protective against cancer. “The results of plant epidemiology suggest that aloe prevents human pulmonary carcinogenesis (lung cancer)”, and aloe is “widely preventive or suppressive against various human cancers.” (Japanese Journal of Cancer Research)

AIDS Research

- In many of the studies there was an average of 70% improvement in symptoms and laboratory criteria within 3 to 4 months. (Terry Pulse, M.D., Reg McDaniel, M.D., Terry Watson, D.O., Dr. Clumeck)
- Many patients stated that opportunistic infections had stopped and they were able to return to normal activity.
- Lab studies showed that helper lymphocytes rose to three times the pre-treatment levels. HIV-1 virus could no longer be cultured. P-24 antigen levels for the virus dropped or became negative.
- Researchers discovered that Aloe mucilaginous polysaccharides alter synthesis and thus the structure of the AIDS virus envelope necessary for infecting lymphocytes. (Vanderbilt Medical Center, Nashville, Tennessee)
- Studies found that there is suppression of the viral messenger RNA in HIV-1 infected leukocytes. Therefore, the reproduction of HIV-1 is

inhibited with a natural and non-toxic substance. (The Southern Research Institute)

Eases Intestinal Problems

- Aloe can be effective for treating inflammatory bowel disease. (Journal of Alternative Medicine)
- Other studies have shown that aloe helps to detoxify the bowel, neutralize stomach acidity, and relieve constipation and gastric ulcers.

Reduces Blood Sugar in Diabetes

- Aloe reduced the blood sugar levels in diabetics. (Hormone Research)

Reduces Arthritic Swelling

- Aloe can help prevent arthritis and reduce the inflammation in joints already affected by arthritis. (Journal of the American Podiatric Medical Association)
- Aloe can also inhibit the autoimmune reaction associated with certain forms of arthritis, in which the body attacks its own tissues.

Helps Heal Wounds

- An animal-based study found that both oral and topical aloe preparations would speed healing. The size of wounds decreased 62% in the animals taking oral aloe compared to a 51% decrease in wound size. (Journal of the American Podiatric Medical Association)

Supports Surgical Recovery

- Aloe decreases surgical recovery time. “Any wound we treat, whether it’s suturing a cut or removing a skin cancer, heals better with aloe vera on it.” (James Fulton, M.D., Journal of Dermatologic Surgery and Oncology)

Screens Out Radiation

- Aloe protects against skin damage from X-rays. Aloe was an effective antioxidant, mopping up the free radical caused by radiation and it protected two of the body’s healing agents. (researchers at Hoshi University, Japan, published in the journal Yakugaku Zasshi)

- The sugar mannitol causes the cells that line the vessel walls to shrink, temporarily allowing therapeutic agents to flow past the gates to the brain tissue.
- Therapeutic agents in Aloe Ace-Max™ can penetrate the blood-brain barrier, allowing them to affect the brain tissue in positive ways.

STANDARDIZED INGREDIENTS

What does “Standardized Ingredients” mean?

Why are Standardized Ingredients the Best?

“Standardized Ingredients” means you are getting the best quality ingredients available.

Most nutritional products contain extracts from some source, usually plants. Extracts are not tested to meet purity and potency consistency. These extracts are measured only for safety factors, such as the presence of yeast or bacteria or molds. Therefore, potency and purity vary tremendously from batch to batch with plant extracts.

Standardized Ingredients are analyzed in every milligram to meet or exceed the particular standard for that extract ingredient.

- For example, OPC 95%:
 - When using extracts, the amount of actual content of a bottle containing OPC 95% may be as low as 10%!!
 - But, when using Standardized OPC 95%, 100% of the entire bottle meets a minimum standard of OPC 95% (or higher).

With Standardized Ingredients you know exactly what you are getting, paying for, and using!!! Standardized ingredients are simply and absolutely the highest quality extracts available to make nutritional products. No comparison... Period!!!

*Only Standardized Ingredients (if available for specific ingredients) are used in the entire Enriching Gifts Product Line....
